C. of C. Drive 'Over Top'

Membership Up To 1,226 Now

The Mansfield C. of C., which has won national recognition in cities of this size, closed its 1948 membership drive last night with 1,226 members, six more than last year's total.

Thirty-one two-man teams made or surpassed their quotas of new and renewal members. They were lead by veteran campaigners, Charles N. Shultz and L. B. Hamilton. Orlo Smith was campaign chairman.

H. B. Soulen, president of the C. of C. said:

"It is very gratifying to note that Mansfielders have again responded with enthusiasm to the annual call for support for civic progress.

STILL TOPS IN NATION

"It appears," Soulen continued, "that as a result of the campaign, Mansfield retains the national honor of having the largest Chamber membership in cities of 50,000 population or less.

"This record is a tribute to the hundreds of Mansfielders whose memberships have kept the Chamber organization representative of a cross section of Mansfield—a factor vital to a progressive community."

The nine other teams that led in getting memberships follow, in order of the number solicited, are:

Clyde Kessel and E. J. Muth, Harry Dailey and Edwin Schmidt, Dean Dickerson and Richard Wolford, George Kyle and R. L. Horn. Robert W. Boals and W. L. Burghard jr., E. E. Stevens and Nick White, Saul Doppelt and Lester Zavelson, Paul Cropper jr., and Oliver H. Hartman, and John S. Jones and O. C. McCormick.

There will be a victory dinner for the membership workers at 6:30 p. m Tuesday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

First 3-Way Tie Possible

CLEVELAND—(AP)—For the third time in five years the American league pennant race won't be decided until the last day. And, as a result of Detroit's 5-3 victory over the Indians yesterday, the race might end in a three-way tie for the first time in history.

These are the possibilities, providing rain doesn't interfere:

1. Cleveland can win the pennant by whipping the Tigers twice, regardless of what happens in Boston.

2. Cleveland can win by splitting with the Tigers, providing Boston and New York split.

3 Boston or New York can win the pennant if one team sweeps the Boston series while Cleveland loses twice to Detroit.

4 Boston or New York can tie Cleveland if one team sweeps the Boston series while the Indians split with Detroit.

5. All three teams can finish in a tie. This would happen if Boston and New York split and Cleveland loses twice.

Dancer Must Wait 5 Days

HAVANA—(INS)—Five days of waiting stood today between Patricia (Satira) Schmidt and freedom.

The 22-year-old Toledo, O., dancer whose pardon was granted by Cuban President Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin, is expected to be released from Guanabacoa women's prison next Wednesday at midnight.

Patricia had been convicted of the fatal shooting of her lover, Chicago attorney John Lester Mee, aboard the latter's yacht in Havana harbor in April, 1947.

Dean Vetoes Kiss Testing

LONDON, Ont.—(AP)—Science received a setback yesterday when a machine built by ingenious medical school students to measure the intensity of kisses was banned by school authorities before its first public appearance.

It had been planned to try it out at a frosh dance in Port Stanley but students said Dean J. B. Collip turned thumbs down on the proposal.

"The machine is to test the strength of the ordicularis oris muscle (lips to laymen)" explained a student.

Truman Ends Tour; Dewey In Missouri

(By United Press)

President Truman returned home today from an intensive two-week campaign tour and declared firmly "I've just begun to fight."

To cheering thousands gathered outside Union station when the presidential train returned to the capital, the President promised no let-up in his "give 'em hell" fight to remain in the White House.

But even as his special rolled into Washington late this morning, GOP candidate Thomas E. Dewey took his own bid for votes straight into Missouri, the President's home state, with a determined try to win it away from the Democrats.

On the last lap of his 8,882-mile western swing, the New York governor planned nine rear platform talks today as his train crossed Kansas and Missouri.

Dewey promised again last night in his final major speech of the tour at Cheyenne to keep the government free of communists if he is elected.

He made a veiled charge that the administration has not used all its evidence against communists.

Mr. Truman returned to a desk piled with work at the White House, including developments in the tense foreign situation. But he was looking forward eagerly to leaving next Wednesday for a swing through New York state, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

The Progressive party candidate, Henry A. Wallace, challenged the CIO to back his Progressive party candidates against Southern California Republican congressmen who have no Democratic opponents. The "invitation" in Los Angeles followed the party's announcement it would withdraw from the field against some "liberal" Democrats.

Last night the background was different as his party raised $20,000 at a colorful dinner in Ciro's swank Hollywood night spot A star-studded floor show helped with the money-raising.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, the States Rights Democrat nominee for president, told a Baltimore crowd that Mr. Truman, Dewey and Wallace all were making "traitorous bids for political power."

Five Jailed For Teen-age Wild Parties

Youths Used Sheriff's Cabin

DES MOINES — (AP) — Five youths were under jail sentence today after a 10-day series of wild parties by more than 30 teen-agers who broke into a sheriff's well-furnished country cabin and used it as a rendezvous.

Sheriff Howard C. Reppert of Des Moines, who found his closed cabin in disarray and ordered an investigation, today sounded a warning to parents as he related details of the case.

"Parents should be a little more curious when their children don't get home until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning," he said.

The sheriff said more than 20 of the teen-agers had admitted engaging in immoral acts at the beer and liquor parties.

Deputy Sheriffs Bert Long and George Rouse said one 15-year-old girl told them she had been attacked 15 times by seven boys in one evening.

Reppert said the parties usually started at midnight and lasted as late as 5 a m. Several who attended are Des Moines high school pupils, he said.

Five youths ranging in age from 15 to 20 have pleaded guilty to charges of contributing to the delinquency of 14, 15 and 16-year-old girls. They have been sentenced to 30-day jail terms.

Nine girls were taken into custody today. Six have been released to their parents and three are at the juvenile home.

Sanitarium Truce Made

Workers Halt Their Slowdown

AKRON — (AP) — CIO-Public Workers unionists today restored normal operations at the Edwin C. Shaw sanitarium, ending a four-day work "slowdown."

The 84 local members of the CIO Public Workers Union unanimously accepted an agreement reached last night in a three-hour session between hospital trustees and union officials.

During the dispute, union employes continued to care for patients, but refused to provide dining room, laundry and other services for hospital staff members.

The settlement calls for appointment of a citizens' advisory committee to study the union's demand for 25-cent hourly pay boosts

Twenty workers dismissed at the beginning of the slowdown will be reinstated, but their pay will remain the same for the next year.

Employes involved in the dispute now are paid an average of 87 cents an hour, the union said. The hospital contended the pay scale is the highest of its type in the state.

Hospital officials also charged the slowdown was illegal in that strikes by public employes are prohibited by the Ferguson act.

Farmer Held As Poisoner

SPRINGFIELD—(INS)—David A. Flory, 39-year-old Clark county farmer, was under grand jury indictment today charged with administering poison to his wife, Goldie Flory.

The poison was found in corn served at the family dinner table last Aug. 18. Mrs. Flory, who swallowed only a few portions of the dish, recovered after a brief illness.

In another indictment yesterday 52-year-old Charles Combs, a merchant policeman, was charged with shooting to kill Clyde O. Harris, who reportedly compared Combs with a comic strip detective.

Crowd Sees Spectacular Display

Boat, Yule Tree Give Color to Grid Show

By GEORGE COMINOS

Suddenly, the Mansfield high school band struck up that Navy tune, "Anchors Aweigh." At the same time, band members formed into a huge anchor.

Precisely at that moment a white ship, the "MHS Tyger," going about two knots on a course of 180 degrees, came on the green sea of grass at Arlin field.

It was the half-time show last night at the Tyger-Sandusky game, and the most spectacular show of the season at Arlin field.

Yes, it was the Navy all right, for there were 16 Tygerettes on board as crew members, appropriately dressed in sailor whites. The U. S. Navy was never like that - - - not at sea, that is.

And pulling the white, two-deck ship by means of a line (rope) was the ship's skiper, seven-year-old Sally Lou Zeger, who later roved she could do a mean somersault, using one hand, then using no hands.

Slowly, then, the 20-yard-long ship changed course to 270 degrees, moved along at about the same speed, weighing anchor in the middle of the green "ocean."

The nautical twist of the half-time entertainment, was in honor of the opponents. Sandusky is on Lake Erie. There are sailors and ships on Lake Erie.

The lighted ship—which required 500 man-hours of labor—carried Navy signal flags, and had portholes. But with all that expenditure of man-hours, the show took about seven minutes.

THERE'S SMOKE TOO

Smoke poured out the ship's stacks. The ship was made of wood and beaver board. A Tygerette up on the top deck signalled in semaphore.

With ship anchored, the Tygerettes went into several dances and went on the field to put on a rowing routine that never got them anywhere.

Later, the ship shoved off without the crew, apparently guided by some top-secret device that even the Navy doesn't know about.

Both bands put on flashy exhibitions during the half. Their stunts were enhanced by darkening the field and lighting the lights carried on the band members' caps.

The Sandusky band, for instance, formed a tulip, while playing "When You Wore a Tulip." And then a half moon, playing "Harvest Moon."

Their next formation was a Christmas tree, and the song—"Winter Wonderland," a reminder that there's only 72 shopping days until Christmas.

Truman Gets 'New Look'

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The boys who know about such things—namely the speech experts—came up with some happy news for President Truman today. They said he had acquired the "new look" in his public speaking.

Marked improvement in the President's techniques was noted by a former congressman turned professor of public speaking who published his views in the quarterly Journal of Speech.

The Journal, edited by Professor Harold F. Harding of Ohio State university, carried a series of articles on campaign oratory.

Air Corridor Threat Given By Russians

Soviets Plan Combat Firing

BERLIN — (ANS) — Soviet headquarters announced today that Russian planes would hold combat firing maneuvers in the air corridor linking Berlin with the American occupation zone.

The Soviet announcement said that Russian planes would conduct "air to air" firing today in the Magdeburg area, 75 miles southwest of Berlin, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., Berlin time.

The British-licensed Berlin press reported that tank and warplane production in the Russian occupation zone is being stepped up.

The newspaper Telegraf said that a high German police official in the Soviet zone recently boasted that Russian-held Germany is "ready to produce tanks and aircraft to destroy western reaction."

The official was quoted as having told a gathering in Saxony, in the Soviet zone, that communist "activists" should be armed with machine guns to "cope with increasing anti-Soviet sabotage."

The new U. S. provost marshal in Berlin, Lt. Col. Thomas Lancer, disclosed today that a special mobile alert company of American military police has been organized to quell communist disturbances and other disorders.

U. S. MP's today backed up west sector German police in guarding news dealers in the American sectors. News dealers have recently been subjected to threats from communist strong-arm squads and Russian-controlled railway police.

Temperature Drop Due

Ideal Fall Weather Forecast Sunday

After a solid week of murky skies, conditions more nearly approaching "October's bright blue weather" were forecast by the weatherman today.

Sunday should provide ideal weather for a fall drive through the country which is just beginning to color, the weatherman said.

The forecast for tomorrow calls for fair and cooler weather with a sharp drop in temperature expected tonight. From the mid-60's today the mercury will drop to the mid-40's, the forecast said.

Mansfield's high yesterday reached 64 at Municipal airport at 3:30 p. m. The temperature went down to 54 at 3:30 a. m. today

Boats Crash; 9 Men Lost

NEW YORK —(AP)— Nine men were believed drowned in the Hudson river early today when a tugboat collided with a 12,000-ton Liberty ship, police reported

Six men were rescued from the 115-foot tugboat Anne Tracy which sank following a collision with the freighter Eliza J. Nicholson off the 25th street Manhattan waterfront.

After the collision with the tug, the freighter veered into two barges the smaller vessel had in tow, police reported.

The cause of the collision was not determined

Lifeboats from the Nicholson and other vessels in the vicinity picked up the survivors.

Authorities said they believed the sunken tug had a crew of 13 and that one was aboard each of the 1,000-ton barges.

The survivors, suffering shock and immersion, were taken to a hospital.

Ask Bomb Ban Plus Controls

Warren Fears Soviet Trick

PARIS — (AP) — Russia formally proposed today a simultaneous ban on the atom bomb and formation of an international atomic energy control organization.

In a concession to the Western powers, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky proposed the U.N. atomic energy commission and the Security Council draft two conventions prohibiting atomic weapons and setting up control over atomic energy, to be signed and put into force at the same time.

The Russians previously had demanded that the atomic bomb be banned before the control body was formed.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate, told reporters a short time later the Russian resolution was an "oriental maneuver of the type with which we are familiar." He said he doubted the sincerity of the Soviet move.

He said the United States wants to know what is wrong with the plan of the majority of the commission—which calls for international control of the atom first and then prohibition of atomic weapons

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, the Canadian delegate, told reporters the Russian proposal was a surrender to the obvious logic of the situation. He said he would continue to back his own resolution, calling on the assembly to back the majority plan.

Vishinsky presented the Soviet proposal during a speech of rebuttal in the U. N. political committee in which he charged the Western powers with misrepresenting Soviet objectives and proposals.

REPRESENTS CHANGE

Today's Soviet move represented a major change in Soviet policy toward the atomic bomb.

Only yesterday Vishinsky had argued strenuously that the bomb must be banned before control machinery could go to work.

The western policy has been that the control machinery should be put to work first and the bomb banned after world production of atomic energy has been inspected and put under United Nations guardianship.

Vishinsky's speech was in answer to an address by French Defense Minister Paul Ramadier, who backed the United States position on atomic energy control.

Ramadier, a former French premier, said hints by Vishinsky yesterday and Yugoslav Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler today that the United States was not the only nation that possessed an atomic bomb, showed an international control system was necessary before the atomic bomb could be banned.

Bebler outlined what he said was the American position in the dispute over atomic energy and asked the committee, "is this convincing?"

Then he replied, "in a certain sense, of course, yes. For it would convince anybody who reasons that this policy is designed to guarantee to the United States the monopoly of the atomic weapon which they think they have.

Mrs. Kasenkina's Story—No. 7

Sister's Husband Falls Into Net

Editor's Note: In this, the seventh article of her series, Mrs. Kasenkina, the school teacher who found a haven in America by her daring leap from the Russian consulate, reveals how the terror of the great purge struck home—first in her sister's family, then among teaching friends and, finally, with the arrest of her husband, Demyan.

By OKSANA S. KASENKINA

(Edited by Isaac Don Levine)

Before my husband was swept under by the great purge, it hit my sister, Anya. She lived next door to our house with her husband, Stefan, who was employed as a telegrapher at the railroad station. Until April, 1937, they were a happy young couple in their twenties. Anya, who was many years younger than I being next to the last of the seven sisters, was as pretty as a doll.

Her husband came from a lowly proletarian family of laborers, and my parents had felt that Anya did not make a good match. But a close relationship with a workingman's clan was generally regarded as insurance against persecution.

Then one day, out of the blue, the NKVD descended upon Anya's husband and dragged him away as he protested his innocence. Anya was found sobbing and shrieking in the street after the arrest, and was brought to our home by neighbors who tried to calm her. The event crushed us all. It was a portent.

What was Anya's husband guilty of? The word for it was sviaz—a tie. If the NKVD found a tie between a confessed counter-revolutionary

Set Up Children's Classes

By NITA BRANSON

At least three Mansfield churches are on the way to solving the religious education problem in Mansfield public schools, caused by the banning of such classes during school hours by the Supreme court ruling last spring.

Tackling the problem are the Main Street Evangelical UB, the First United Presbyterian and the First Evangelical UB churches.

Although unofficial, the class taught each Friday afternoon for the past four years by Mrs. Lewis Davidson at Alta and the one started recently by Mrs. William Schuff in East Mansfield are indirectly under the supervision of the First Evangelical UB since both women are members of that church.

However, a council of administration of the church is considering a neighborhood project that will spread over the entire city but plans are being held up temporarily while the Council of Religious Education debates the problem.

The two other churches began youth classes several weeks ago. The one at the Main street church was held for its third session Thursday afternoon from 4 to 5 p m. The United Presbyterian had a second session last Wednesday following school hours. In each project, there has been a definite increase in attendance and interest.

START YOUTH CLUBS—Mrs. Charles L. Shook, wife of the pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, leads a group of school children in the Wednesday afternoon club at the church. Community singing is a big part of the program, which the congregation started two weeks ago.

In both class groups, the program is interdenominational, open to any child in the city. They are "neighborhood clubs" in reality. Attendance at the Main street church has reached 50 and that at the United Presbyterian, has increased to 90 school children.

Mrs Charles Ray is supervising director at the Main street church, assisted by Mrs. Willard J Shawk, wife of the pastor, and Miss Ruth Elaine Brayman, newly appointed church secretary. If the class increases in attendance, other members of the Sunday school and church will be added to the staff.

"It's surprising how Mrs. Ray can hold the attention of 50 children while telling a story," Mrs. Shawk said. "The children who are normally little wiggle-worms sit absolutely quiet and take in every word. In addition to stories, we have song periods in which we teach them the best of children's hymns, memory lessons from the Bible such as the Psalms, stories both from the Bible and those which are character building."

At the United Presbyterian church, classes are under the supervision of Rev. and Mrs. Charles L. Shook, assisted by Mrs. Carl Wolford, Mrs. Arlie Kiser, Mrs. Frederick Proctor, Mrs. E. Jackson Osborne, Mrs. Dean Miller, Mrs. Harold Weiker, Mrs. Clair Kirschhofer and Paul Tapper.

"At our church we are dividing the children into classes," Rev. Shook said. "Those in the first, second and third grades are enrolled in one class; those of the fourth, fifth and sixth in a second and pupils of seventh, eighth and ninth in a third.

Each Youth club, as we call the groups, will decide on a name. The idea for our Youth Club program is patterned after those held by the Westminster United Presbyterian church of Des Moines, Iowa. There were no religious education classes in Des Moines, just these neighborhood groups or Youth clubs, which the churches provided for all children."

FACILITIES FOR 150

"We have facilities for caring for 150, should attendance reach that point," Rev. Shook said. "Our program will consist of music, Bible stories and recreational features. In addition we will serve refreshments with each weekly meeting."

There have been refreshments each Thursday also at the Main street church and special features, such as extra movies, will be arranged for the program about once a month," Mrs. Shawk said.

Both churches are pioneering in the idea here. However, both Rev. Shook and Rev. Shawk are pleased with the way things are going.

"We could care for quite a few more in our church," Rev. Shawk said. "We want it understood that our class is not just for our own church children: it is for the entire neighborhood, regardless of church affiliation."

That idea was echoed by Rev. Shook, both of whom hope to reach many children outside their own churches.

Jewish Congregations Begin Rosh Hashonoh Observance

Tomorrow the two Jewish congregations in Mansfield, B'nai Jacob and Temple Emanuel, will usher in their annual New Year's or Rosh Hashonoh worship services.

"This holiday is a time of spiritual scrutiny," Rabbi Moshe Goldblum of the B'nai Jacob synagogue said. "It is a time when each individual must take stock of his past actions during the year and resolve to live a better life during the coming year."

During the two-day observance of Rosh Hashonoh the congregations participate in public prayer and private devotions. Within the past 10 days preceding the opening service Sunday at 8 p. m., members of the faith were asked to repent for their sins by resolving to improve their lives. These 10 days are known as the 10 days of penitence.

New Year's is followed in 10 days by Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement, when the fate of every member of the faith is sealed by God, as to how he is to fare during the coming year.

Those participating in the services at B'nai Jacob are Louise Komita, who will chant the morning service, Leo Budin, James Goodman, Conrad Harris, Samuel Harris, Leonard Hurwitz, Andrew Klein, David S. Lapine, Dr O. J. Marcus, Harold Oxman and Charles Weinstein. Mrs Goldblub, Miss Marcia Freeman and Miss June Klein will be in charge of the children's services and Robert Gerth in charge of the ushers.

Services at B'nai Jacob synagogue will be held Sunday at 8 p. m., Monday, at 8 a. m., 6:30 p. m., and Tuesday at 8 a. m

Rites at the Temple Emanuel, at which Rabbi Eugene Lipman, Cincinnati, will preside, will be held Sunday at 3 p m, and Monday at 10 a m. and 2 p m.

Rabbi Lipman is the newly appointed rabbi of the Temple Emanuel, dedicated for worship last Sunday afternoon.

and a casual acquaintance, if the two had been observed in conversation on the street or in a tea room, that was enough to land the acquaintance in the net. The terror fed on suspicion and denunciation. Proteges of purged officials were rounded up and seldom came back.

We knew Anya's husband to be absolutely innocent of any disloyalty to the Soviet government. But we never saw him again. He was shipped off to the Northern camps near the Arctic Circle. Later we learned from an inmate in the same camp, who was fortunate enough to survive and be returned home, that Stefan had died from hunger and cold there.

During the second half of April, following the seizure of Stefan, the iron claws of the NKVD reached into the schools. Teachers who had toiled all their lives, who had created and kept their institutions going in the most trying times would be arrested and vanish without trace.

One day my husband Demyan came home and reported.

"They took three away today I'm fraid they'll be after me too."

We talked over the advisability of Demyan's absenting himself from town under some pretext until things quieted down. There were some who saved their lives in this manner, and even now I sometimes think that if my husband had only decided to go away, our tragedy might have been averted. But there was no place in his home village that would provide safety for him. We concluded that, after all, his most secure haven was with my father with whom we were living.

FATEFUL NIGHT

On that fateful night, towards the end of April, I returned from school about 7 o'clock in the evening. My husband arrived soon after. My boy Oleg, who had just turned sixteen, was not home yet, and we were worried about him. When he finally showed up he explained that he had gone to see a movie.

"What about your nomework?" I asked with annoyance.

"Oh, I finished it long ago." Oleg was an excellent student, and his marks in all subjects were straight A's.

We sat down to the table. My husband was morose. He announced:

"Today they took the director himself away." We gasped. Demyan was teaching in the technical institute. After a while he added: "And the teacher of geography, too."

I knew that geography instructor well. He was a veteran educator, with a large family, and very popular. Shocked, I exclaimed:

"Why? Why him?"

"What a question from you! Don't you know what's going on?" Demyan rejoined sharply.

POLICE ARRIVE

I made the bed for Oleg. His little room was filled with cactus plants which my mother cultivated. We occupied, together with my parents, their four-room cottage. My mother's hobby always had been flowers, and I inherited my interest in botany from her. I had ten palms in the house. Whenever there was need in town of flowers for a wedding or a funeral or some festival, they would come to mother.

My husband and I went to work to prepare the next day's lessons and tests for the coming examination period. We were still at it after midnight when there was a sudden knock at the back door. It was 12:30. "Open the door, it's the NKVD," came a voice from outside.

Demyan started for the door. "No," I said trembling. "I'll go." I pointed to the front door, indicating to my husband that perhaps it might be best for him to try to get away. He shook his head and whispered. "It's no use, they always surround a house."

CUTS PROTESTS

My father, awakened, was at the door ahead of me. He let in three officers of the NKVD. They cut his question short and sent the old man back to his room.

"We have orders to take you away," the chief of the trio turned to Demyan when they entered our room, as he produced a search warrant.

"Why didn't you come in the morning or in the daytime," I snapped at the officers. "Did you have to do it in the middle of the night?"

"That's our affair," the officer in charge shot at me. "Mind your own business, and don't talk so much."

The three started on a methodical and minute search of all our belongings. First they went through all the books and papers, looking for counter-revolutionary material of which there was none. But they did find in my desk an old letter from my sister Eugenia in England dealing with family matters, and which I had foolishly saved. For the NKVD hounds a letter from a foreign country was a prize indeed.

Demyan, who had kept his poise, was now visibly d[illegible]. He gave me a reproachful look as if saying:

"Why, oh why, did you have to keep it?"

TOMORROW: The fate of Demyan.

NEW CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH—Here is the architect's drawing of the proposed new sanctuary and religious buildings to be erected by the First Congregational church at Marion avenue and Millsboro road. Thursday night members officially opened the fund-raising campaign under the direction of Judge Herbert H. Schettler.

Workers Seek $250,000 In Drive

Church Fund Campaign Under Way

A campaign to raise $250,000 to help build a new First Congregational church is under way.

While the entire building project will cost close to $500,000, the congregation has $250,000 in reserve to apply on the new church. It was finally decided that campaign members would work for enough to complete the entire building project of four units, sanctuary, social hall, religious education building and chapel.

The congregational meeting Thursday night was opened with devotionals by the pastor, Rev. Matthew G. Madden. An explanation of the campaign needs was given by Judge Herbert H. Schettler, campaign chairman. Fred Hout, who prepared a brochure of information and planning for members of the campaign committee and congregational members, explained its purpose.

The new building will be erected at Marion avenue and Millsboro road on land donated by the Black family. It will be one of the finest and most complete religious structures in this section of the state. Designed by the late W. H Thomas of Philadelphia, noted church architect, it combines the most efficient and beautiful in church architecture.

Campaign workers hope to reach their goal within a week, Judge Schettler said.

FACES MILLSBORO ROAD

The site is such that both the first and second floors of the religious education building, to the west and slightly to the rear of the main sanctuary, will be above ground level. The social hall is to the west of the religious education building, on the Millsboro road side. Here on the ground floor, there will be a seating capacity for 355 persons, with a stage, adequate storage space beneath, and club rooms.

The chapel will seat 80 persons and will be used for funerals, small weddings and junior church services.

The spire on the main sanctuary will be 110 feet high. The sanctuary will seat 406 persons, with additional seating space in the balcony for 60 more. The choir will seat 42 persons.

The entire group of buildings will be erected of red brick with white trim and of Colonial design.

When finished, there will be available for the extensive religious program, 409,000 cubic feet of space. Besides the actual building cost of $455,000, an additional $45,000 will be needed for driveways, furnishings and landscaping.

Club Raided

HOLLYWOOD —(INS)— Sheriff's vice squad deputies yesterday raided for a second time this week a Sunset strip "after-hours" nitery and arrested 56 patrons on gambling and vagrancy charges.

Among those arrested was Dancer Vicki Evans, 25, who is a principal in the Robert Mitchum marijuana case.

An Earl [illegible] doll dancer, Marie L'Angelo, also was gathered in. Only last Wednesday 21 persons were taken into custody in the same night club.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

PAGE FOUR — MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1948

Drive carefully tomorrow—and remember that railroad grade crossings are danger spots.

Still one day in which to register—in case you are one of those who prefer putting things off until the last minute.

Some are recalling that it was twelve years ago that the Literary Digest's pre-election poll was building up for a final letdown.

This Is Your Carrier Boy's 'Day'

AFTER all the other work has been done, the final responsibility for getting your newspaper to your home rests with the carrier boy—it is upon his promptness, reliability, courtesy and carefulness that dependence must be placed in delivering your paper in a satisfactory way.

The percentage of satisfactory delivery service is so high that, in observance of National Newspaper Week a special day is set aside to pay tribute and express appreciation of the boys who serve so faithfully to provide the final link between a newspaper's place of publication and its readers.

This is that day—known as National Newspaperboy Day—and The News-Journal joins with many other newspapers in directing attention to the highly important part the carrier boy plays in serving his customers.

Being what is known as a "good" carrier boy includes so many elements required for success in later life that it is not to be wondered that a large percentage of the boys who gained business experience in delivering newspapers afterward advanced to positions of responsibility and trust.

Opportunities today are as great as ever for carrier boys to develop qualities that will contribute greatly to adult success in whatever field of endeavor they choose, and it is fitting that each of them be given the encouragement of kind treatment and an occasional friendly word which will evidence interest in their welfare.

TB Patients Innocent Victims of Strike

SUCH AN EXHIBITION of the strike technique as is now in progress at the Edwin Shaw tuberculosis sanatorium in Akron is one of the sort that tends to weaken public confidence in the leadership which permits such a condition to come about.

Here is a case in which a non-profit institution, designed for restoration to health and saving lives of tuberculosis victims, is handicapped in its humanitarian work by the failure of a number of its employes to perform essential duties . . . indulging is what is called a "part-time strike," in an effort to enforce demands by the CIO United Public Workers Union for a 25-cents an hour pay boost.

Other strikes by public workers have, from time to time, endangered the health and safety of residents of affected communities, but seldom, if ever, has such action been aimed so directly at actual invalids as appears in this episode.

There could be no objection, of course, to individual employes who believe that they are underpaid finding work elsewhere, but that an organized group should conspire to hamper the functioning of a hospital is out of accord with what appears to be a very general impression of when a strike can be considered justified.

Mansfield's Halloween 'Idea' Publicized

THIS TIME it is Richard Maxwell, Mansfield boy who has gained national prominence as a singer, who attracts attention to this city by writing an article for the current issue of Journal of Living magazine, which tells how the late Fred Hunt started and popularized sensible observance of Halloween here.

Assuming that "Halloween can be fun—if overenthusiastic pranksters don't make it tragic or costly, and get themselves into trouble," Richard Maxwell explains that this was Fred Hunt's idea more than forty years ago and that he decided to organize a celebration.

The article tells of the small beginning and later development of the idea until "soon Halloween in Mansfield became a sort of Mardi Gras."

Mention is made of last year's successful celebration, with an estimate that "more than 10,000 eager townspeople joined in the fun," and the final paragraph is in the form of a tribute: "Fred Hunt wasn't there. He has been dead some ten years, but Halloween continues to be HIS day in Mansfield. It's a gay memorial for a gay spirit that took the mischief out of fun. Fred Hunt had a good idea. Maybe you can use it."

And this year's Halloween is not too far ahead to give timeliness to a mention that Mrs. Ada Hunt Doerr is already making preparations to carry on the traditional observance, with Monday, Nov. 1, chosen as the date, and it may be hoped that public co-operation will be such as to assure continuance of this "good idea" long into the future.

Mt. Vernon Mayor Tries 'Fine' Idea

SEVERITY of penalty is being tried by Mayor Walter W. Rohler, of Mt. Vernon, in an effort to eliminate the hazards of drunken driving in that city.

A month after he took office last January Mayor Rohler assessed a maximum fine of $500 on a drunken driver and announced that every other motorist convicted of driving while intoxicated would receive the same penalty.

Now, according to a report from the neighboring city, more than seventy days have passed without a single arrest for drunken driving.

It is assumed, of course, that suspension or revocation of driver's license is made a part of the penalty, and whether such a large fine is more effective than a smaller fine and requirement for serving a jail sentence is debatable.

Whichever seems the best course, there can be no doubt that every possible discouragement should be placed in the way of persons who endanger the safety and lives of other motorists by driving when intoxicated.

Noting that the Henry Wallace party has been operating in the red financially, the Kansas City Star comments: "It couldn't have a more appropriate color on its books."

Harry Wade comments: "In the cool of the evening, six active motor scooters on the block can give you the effect of the Berlin air lift, but without the food."

Place among coincidences the information from Sandusky that there is an intersection in that city at which Truman and Warren streets cross.

Claude Callan presents this cheering thought: "If your children neglect you it is a sign they are normal, healthy children."

Make sure that you are properly registered.

Raymond Moley's Analysis

Senate Races Leave Control In Doubt

AFTER visiting several states where critical senatorial contests are being held, the conclusion must be reached that there is a possibility verging on a probability that the Democrats may recapture the Senate. Briefly summarized, the situation is this:

The Republicans have five seats in danger—in Oklahoma, Kentucky, West Virginia, Wyoming and Minnesota.

Reliable reports from those states indicate that at the moment things look black for Republicans in Oklahoma, West Virginia and Minnesota; gray in Kentucky; and indeterminate in Wyoming.

Republicans can take Democratic seats in Montana and New Mexico. After visiting those states, I would say that Republican chances are fair, not good. In Rhode Island, their chances are very slim. In Tennessee, there is only a bare chance.

At present, the Senate contains 51 Republicans and 45 Democrats. The reader can form his own calculations. The net result might be a tie, in which Vice President Earl Warren could, under the Constitution, cast the deciding vote.

In such a case, the California family man would have to sleep on a cot in his office. The memory is still fresh in Washington of the time when Vice President Dawes, asleep in his hotel room, was absent from a crucial vote and President Coolidge lost a cabinet appointment.

* * *

Possible Changes.

LET US suppose that the Republicans lose four seats net. What would happen?

The most important change—granted that the present ranking Democrats remain on the committees on which they served in the 80th Congress—would be a shift in chairmanships.

Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma would become chairman of the committee on agriculture. Thomas is, to say the least, an old-time partisan of soft money and high farm prices.

McKellar of Tennessee would be chairman of appropriations. Tydings would head the committee on armed services.

Wagner, who has been ill for some time, would head banking and currency, with Maybank next in line. It might be added that if anything should remove these two, the Honorable Glen H. Taylor would be in charge.

Finance would go to George of Georgia, a sund and able master of finance.

Interstate and foreign commerce would go to Ed Johnston of Colorado.

Public works would go to Chavez of New Mexico. Senator Chavez is not in the best of health and if he proved unable to serve, Sheridan Downey would move in.

Most important, perhaps, in these troubled times would be the supplanting of Vandenberg as chairman of foreign affairs. Connally would succeed him.

Also, it should be added that Taft would be succeeded on the labor and public welfare committee by Elbert Thomas.

Not all of these changes would be disastrous. Some would represent improvements. But the general effect would be to confuse responsibility if Dewey is elected and, in some instances, place vital national concerns in very weak hands.

Both Try to Win West

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WITH Governor Dewey — Governor Dewey's strenuous effort to win the West, in which he literally has gone overboard with flattery and lavish promises, suggests that that vast section is not too easily wrenched from its long and profitable affiliation with the Democratic party under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

This coincides with information gathered at various points, which indicates that the Truman-Dewey battle in the mountain and Pacific coast states is much more of a nip-and-tuck affair than it appears to be in the East and Middle West.

The Roosevelt name is identified with vast development projects and farm relief. It still is magic in the West. President Truman recognized that by frequent mention of his predecessor on his recent western tour, and always to arouse an enthusiastic response.

Governor Dewey's technique is interesting. He sings the praises of the West and its people in passages that at times approach the lyrical and that hint the presence of at least a minor poet on his staff.

He builds up the ego of the people by lauding their initiative and their independence and says surely they would not want to be considered "in vassalage" to Washington, meaning the Democratic party; that he knows they do not want to depend on "handouts" from Washington; that they don't have to depend on any party, least of all the Democratic party, to save them.

After these encomiums on the self-reliance and independence of the West, he goes on to identify the Republican party with various original federal statutory measures to benefit the West, such as the Homestead Act after the Civil war and Reclamation Act and others.

* * *

Story Has Two Sides.

THEN he brings out the wallop, which is to announce solemnly in a hushed voice that the 80th Republican Congress about which, he reminds his hearers with an arch smile, "you have heard so much lately," appropriated more for reclamation than any Congress in history, including the Democratic Congresses that immediately preceded it — $389,000,000.

That is a fact. He stops there. He does not go into the background to tell the story, to tell how the Republican Congress appropriated that amount only after various protests from the West over cuts in recommendations submitted by President Truman and constant prodding from the White House.

The President told the whole story when he was in the West. The facts are that the President requested an appropriation of $160,000,000 for reclamation at the first session of the 80th Congress in 1947 as the minimum amount necessary to carry forward reclamation on an economical basis.

The Republican House appropriations committee knocked nearly $90,000,000 from that. The West howled and, finally, largely through the Senate, Congress raised the amount to $104,000,000.

As a result of the cut in the President's $160,000,000 estimate of needs, work on a number of big reclamation and power projects had to be curtailed and some big jobs actually were stopped. The West howled again, and a supplemental appropriation finally was put through so this work could continue.

In every election year, of course, the people expect half-truths, distortions and exaggerations, and nobody perhaps should get excited. Both sides do it.

The West is well-acquainted with what actually went on in Washington. This perhaps explains, partially at least, why Governor Dewey had to make such a strenuous campaign in that area.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Election Won't Change Foreign Policy

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

JUST FOUR WEEKS remain in the 1948 presidential election campaign. Candidates of the major parties returned from intensive swings about the country. President Truman and Gov. Dewey concluded two-week railway tours from coast to coast. Both made major addresses in the big cities before huge crowds and almost countless informal talks from the observation platforms of their campaign trains.

The tour started almost as a procession with Gov. Dewey hot on the heels of the President through the west. Dewey was two days behind Mr. Truman in Iowa but they were a day apart in Denver and again in Los Angeles.

Their paths diverged after that. The President swung south through Texas, Oklahoma, Kentucky and West Virginia. Gov. Dewey rolled north through Oregon, Washington, Montana, Utah, winding up with a major speech in Jefferson City in the President's home state of Missouri.

Mr. Truman made certain his train stopped at Temple, Tex., where he talked briefly. In 1904, the Temple city council heard that President Theodore Roosevelt intended to pass without stopping and passed an ordinance ordering all presidential trains to halt at least five minutes. The city marshal flagged the train at the city limits, climbed aboard and served papers on the engineer. That ordinance had never been repealed and the President said he did not intend to break any laws.

Foreign Crisis.

The crucial developments in the international situation at Paris had their effect on both campaigners. President Truman was in constant touch with Secretary of State Marshall and conferred aboard his train with Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, one of the three western envoys to the Kremlin on the Berlin crisis.

Finance would go to George of Georgia, a sund and able master of finance.

Smith said that in his opinion relations with Russia never were more serious.

Aboard the Dewey train was Allen W. Dulles, brother of John Foster Dulles, the New York governor's representative at Paris. The brothers kept in communication by trans-Atlantic telephone.

Agreement on Basic Policy.

The Republican and Democratic presidential rivals are shoulder to shoulder on the broad basis issues of this nation's foreign policy despite some differences on administration. Governor Dewey, on the eve of a major address on foreign policy at Salt Lake City, said:

"It is important for the world to know that this election will serve to strengthen and unify our whole nation. Let no ruler in this world for one moment suspect that this constitutional process—which they do not understand—is going to leave us divided."

At Home

Healthy Outlook.

Noting that personal incomes are setting a record this year, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicts 1949 incomes will be just as high. And what's more, the bureau forsees a continuing boom in employment.

At the same time, the Federal Reserve Board paints a rosy picture of the nation's farmers. Their buying power this year, Board experts say, is more than twice what is was before the war.

However, the agency adds, "Incomes received by farmers who operate small acreage have been small, and it appears that sizeable numbers of these farmers have been taking industrial jobs."

It estimates that 10 per cent fewer persons worked on farms at the end of 1947 than before the war, while non-farm population has risen nearly 20 per cent since 1937.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics says personal incomes may taper off toward the end of 1949, but for the year as a whole they will equal the 1948 record.

* * *

Veterans' Ventures.

It's tougher going, now than it used to be for veterans who want to start their own business.

"The veteran who starts a venture of his own—unless he has a unique idea which no one else has thought of—can expect to face increasingly stiff competition," says Secretary of Commerce Sawyer.

"Under present costs he will need more working capital than in normal times and his risk is greater."

A survey by the commerce department has shown that about 20 per cent of recent business failures were World War II veterans.

* * *

Hands Across the Sea.

The United States has sent $123,532,663 more into the battle for foreign recovery, during the week ending September 25, the latest for which statistics are available.

The Economic Cooperation Administration allocated the amount to nine western European nations, western Germany and the Netherlands East Indies. It included 12.4 million dollars in U.S. cotton for Bizone Germany, 11.5 million dollars in Canadian aluminum ingots for Britain, 11.4 million dollars in Arabian petroleum for Italy and 7.8 million dollars in U.S. wheat for Belgium.

Total ECA authorizations for all participating European countries and Chine reached $1,824,425,810 on September 25.

* * *

Cancer Research.

A Yale surgeon says that new medical tools have made possible for the first time detailed study of body cells, opening new paths in cancer research which promise important discoveries.

Dr. Samuel C. Harvey says breakdown of the cell, the body's basic unit, can be brought about through use of the recently developed electron microscope and the ultra-centrifuge, a high-speed whirling device.

This new research data may enable an understanding of the difference between cells that get out of hand and those which behave themselves, he says.

The Yale professor cautions against any talk of immediate cures. He doubts even if unlimited funds for research were available that cancer can be conquered within specified months or even years.

Abroad

UN Under Test.

In the Berlin crisis, hard core of east-west differences over Germany, the United Nations is confronted with an explosive issue which may make Paris the last full meeting of the 58-state world organization.

Britain's Ernest Bevin warned that the U.N. may fall apart over the east-west split but, he said, "It is better to have our difficulties now than to live in a fool's paradise."

"If it is impossible to work for peace on a world basis," he declared, "we must proceed on a regional basis."

Bevin spoke as his government, France and the United States formally cited Russian acts in Berlin as a threat to peace, placing the issue before the Security Council.

* * *

Red Surge In China.

The fall of Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, rich in cattle and industry, is more than just the loss of another city to Chinese communists. It is a stark defeat for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. As a result he has lost face with Asiatics from the Indian Ocean north to Siberia.

Probably even more significant is the fact that the Chinese Reds somewhere, somehow, have come up with a real fighting army. The force that took Tsinan is well trained and well equipped.

The communists are following their Tsinan victory with a fall offensive over many thousands of miles, which seriously threatens the Manchurian corridor.

Communists virtually control all north China.

Turkey Complains.

Turkey, which is getting American arms and dollars under the Truman Doctrine, is not too happy about some aspects of the program.

Turkish newspapers have carried increasing reports of plane crashes—about 14 a month under the stepped-up training program directed by Americans.

Last week Turkey grounded a number of American P-47 fighter planes because of what they claimed were technical defects. U.S. Air Force technicians flew out to the base where the trouble occurred and quickly adjusted the equipment.

Thoughts About Time

By CALVIN A. BYERS

A STUDENT said to me regretfully, "There is a limit to everything. Time is the greatest resource of our lives—just as a thread that sews a seam becomes a vital part of the cloth it holds together."

Yet time is a resource common to each of us alike. Time is money to the laborer, yet the millionaire has no more hours in a day than you or I. The things we take time for determine what manner of life we weave.

A thousand distractions impinge upon us, at every turn. Through all the clash and clatter, the hustle and bustle of every day, it is possible to weave a thread of honesty or nobleness, a love of beauty, an upward reaching prayer. And much of delight rests upon such use of time—it gives foundation to many future joys. The richest, happiest life must have its ample season to reflect and to grow.

Time is not wasted if used in doing nothing. To do nothing may often be the wisest use of time. Each of us needs an occasional lazy day.

It requires time to stand upon some high hill and listen to the autumn song of the meadow lark; it takes time to sail a boat or to play a game, yet such use of time may be the wisest use that can be imagined.

It takes time to cook a meal or to darn a sock. It takes time to feed the pigs and to repair the roof. Yet such use of time may bring more happiness to more people than any other.

Every accomplishment is a product of time—towering shafts of brick and stone, monstrous ships upon the seas, giant trees in the forests, the Egyptian pyramids — rock-ribbed mountains and ocean depths, are products of time that waits for no man.

The psalmist said, "Take time to be holy—speak often with thy Creator," The poet said, "The moving finger writes, and having writ, moves on . . . nor all thy piety and wit can lure it back to cancel half a line, nor all thy tears wash out a word of it."

"Wouldst thou be wise? Then do not squander time—for time is the stuff that life is made of."

WHERE'S this premier of Belgium, Paul-Henri Spaak, been all our lives? There's a fellow who talks turkey, pulls no punches, and gets to the point when he replies to the Kremlin.

He came right out and said "Russia maintains a fifth column that makes Hitler's look like an organization of Boy Scouts." And he said that if Moscow wanted peace all it needed to do was give the rest of us a little cooperation.

Nobody can ever say Belgium wants another war, but I figure Izvestia and Pravda will make a try at it.

Timely Editorial

Something Really Important

A survey of the country's editorial pages for one day lately brought to light five different problems described in the captions as "transcendent."

None in the long view seemed to us so vital as that noted again this month by the President: The laying waste of our land through failure to control its destruction by nature and its despoiling through positive misuse bred of ignorance and shortsightedness.

A foreign invader who moved to relieve us of our land or loot our natural wealth would find us galvanized to instant action in its defense.

Hair Stylist and Band Leader Tell How to Pick a Good Wife

NEW YORK—(AP)—One way to pick a wife is to look at her nape-of-the-neck hairline and find out what dance steps she prefers.

A Manhattan hair stylist and a society band leader say in this way a bachelor can quickly discover a girl's secret personality.

Mark, a coiffeur who features a cozy $50 futuristic coiffure, said that after studying several thousand feminine napes he had reached these conclusions:

"A girl with a three-pointed hairline is generous, open-handed, and will put herself out for friends. But if the two outer points reach lower than the center, beware—she is the type of person who, if taken advantage of, will retaliate with great venom.

"A straight hairline indicates a gambling instinct and executive ability.

"A five-point hairline shows a rare sense of humor. A girl with a mushrooming, sprawling hairline is artistic, moody—and very unstable. If the hair has a tendency to swirl from left to right, that is a sign the girl has a liberal turn of mind."

If his sweetheart passes the hairline test, the bachelor can then assay her character according to a formula evolved by Bandleader Ruby Newman.

Newman divides women into five dancing types—waltzers, fox trotters, provocatives, weird-anticals (jitterbugs), and stumblers or non-dancers.

"A girl who loves to waltz is a good bet for a good home-maker," said the maestro. "She is lovable, sensible and understanding. And she can be as happy in a one-room flat as in a 26-room mansion."

He thinks the fox-trotter is almost as good a marital bet.

"This girl is a bit more bold than the waltz type. But she is usually pretty fair at household duties, overlooks your faults and can charm the boss—even with an empty refrigerator."

The provocative type, said Newman, is "an exhibitionist who rhumbas and sambas in sophisticated manner. She's not reluctant to test the kitchen chinaware on your skull, and she loves and demands a good time. Household chores are out of her world. To keep her happy you have to give her lots of attention as well as your paycheck.

The weird-antical girl uses up so much energy jitterbugging she has no strength left for tidying up the house. Her intelligence quotient is rated lower than a 1914 Russian ruble.

"She's always too tired to tackle the family wash, and her sink is full of dirty dishes," Newman warned.

"She'd rather be wrapped around a good pulp tale or the latest comic magazine. To her the frills of life weigh more than the necessities, and her husband's income will always trail her budget."

★

The band leader classified the last type, the female stumbler who spends more time dancing on her escort's feet than on the floor, as one answer to the shortage of household maids.

"She's meek, subservient and a kitchen addict. But a bachelor could do a lot worse than marry her. She'll always be home when he gets there."

Newman added one caution:

"A girl may like to rhumba and samba and still be a waltz type. She may be able to dance any step. To type her right you have to find out which step she likes to dance most often."

Strike up the band, gents. Ladies, the hairline forms to the right.

Burglars Get Nothing

Damage Safe At Lumber Office

Burglars who broke into the Tinkey Lumber company, 409 North Main street, last night, pried open the back of a large safe, but apparently got nothing for their efforts.

And even if they had opened the safe, their total "take" would have been about $10 in cash and a lot of records, valuable only to the lumber company.

The burglary was discovered at 7 a. m. today by Pete Nadason, a foreman at the plant. Police investigation showed that entrance had been gained by prying open a window on the south side of the building. After entering the mill, the burglars pried a door between the mill and the supply room, and then went into the office.

They rolled the safe, which police said it would take several men to move, into the mill where they pushed it over, face down.

They succeeded in prying open the back so that a person could reach into it, but apparently didn't get anything.

R. L. Henry, general manager, was unable to open the safe with the combination because the lock was damaged by the thieves. Company officials opened the safe to inspect it for loss by prying off the rest of the lock of the safe.

Highway To Skirt Airport

Take Offers In Columbus

Bids for construction of the new 3.44-mile section of State Route 13, around the east side of Mansfield airport, will be opened Oct. 26, county officials said today. Bids will be received at the state highway office in Columbus until that time.

State highway department officials of the Ashland office met with the county commissioners and the county engineer in the commissioner's office yesterday on the project.

The meeting was called principally to go over right-of-way agreements since the county is responsible for obtaining the right-of-way for the proposed highway section.

County Engineer Walter F. Rusk said the county also learned that the tentative date for receiving bids for construction of the new 3.5-mile Newville-Perrysville section of State Route 95, was set as Nov. 9.

MAY DELAY LETTING

E. F. Rule, of the highway department, who attended the meeting, said the Route 13 highway job would not be sold on Oct. 26 unless county commissioners had the right-of-way cleared by Oct. 5. The next day of sale would be Nov. 9.

Completion dates for both highway sections have been set for late 1949.

State Route 13 at the airport was abandoned when the port was built. Since then a substitute route provided by the city and county at the west side of the port land has served traffic.

State Route 13 plans call for an 11-inch gravel base, with a nine-inch water-bound macadam on top of that. The surface will be two and one-half inches of asphalt. It will be a two-lane highway.

Rule said that no estimate of the cost would be made public since this is a federal aid job, and the government does not permit release of such information.

300 Register For Classes

More than 300 have registered for the regular winter schedule of classes at Friendly House, according to a report today by Russell Gimbel, director.

"We expect this number to increase to about 900 before the winter is over," Gimbel said.

All teen-age classes will start next Monday after school under the direction of Mike Wentz for the boys and Miss Beatrice Bourgeois for the girls. Miss Bourgeois of Shelby is a new staff member, who helped as counselor at the Hidden Hollow camp last summer.

The classes include the usual social groups for boys and girls, woodworking classes, sewing and dressmaking for the girls, gymnasium, Junior Optimist, Rangers and Rinky Dinks for the boys.

Kindergarten classes began last week under the supervision of Mrs. Mary Gimbel, with an enrollment of 40 five-year-old children and a waiting list.

English classes, taught by Miss Anne Leipziger have been in progress all summer and will continue for the fall and winter season Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 7 to 9 p. m.

Beginning Monday, the library and game rooms will be open every afternoon and evening. Each Friday night of the season there will be either movies or amateur theatricals, in the gymnasium.

"Friendly House will be open from 8:30 a. m. until 9 p. m. every day during the season," Gimbel said.

Auto Plants Gaining In Efficiency

Advances Made In Equipment

By DAVID J. WILKIE
(AP Automotive Editor)

DETROIT—(AP)—The car industry has greatly advanced styling and engineering since the war, but even more has been done in bettering its manufacturing equipment.

Probably nowhere in industry is this better illustrated than in Oldsmobile's new engine factory in Lansing, Michigan. Here multiple purpose machines perform many operations formerly handled one at a time by individual workers.

One example is a machine 86 feet long with 18 separate work stations, all controlled by one worker. Another is a single machine containing more than 90 cutting tools, all working simultaneously on as many as 17 engine blocks undergoing progressive machining operations

The factory is producing new V-8 cylinder, valve-in-head engines for the 1949 model Oldsmobile, to be introduced late this year The same general principles however, are being followed in other plants producing a variety of essential parts for the postwar automobile

Without this special purpose equipment, it is a fair assumption today's automobile would cost even more than it does.

The refinement of automobile power plants such as is being developed by Oldsmobile is one of the outstanding mechanical features of the postwar automobile Aside from engine advances, improved clutch linkages and better braking there isn't much that is really new in the postwar car

Most of the mechanical advances already were out of the research departments when the war halted passenger car production in February, 1942

Walter Lippmann Speaks

Crisis Ultimatum Avoided

The situation in Berlin now that the Moscow discussions have been broken off, finds that city blockaded on the ground but with the air corridors still open The Russians cannot make the blockade complete except by shooting down the cargo planes That would be war We cannot pierce the blockade except by overpowering the Russian troops who hold the railroads canals and highways leading into Berlin That would be war

The crucial question is whether, and how long this dangerous stalemate will be maintained It cannot be maintained indefinitely But in the interval while the stalemate lasts a solution by diplomacy is still possible This is reflected in the decision of the western powers to bring the dispute before the United Nations rather than to deliver the ultimatum

An examination of our obligations under the charter and a cool and considered estimate of our vital interests will lead, I think, to the same conclusion—that our soundest and strongest policy is to carry out in full measure the letter and the spirit of the charter.

We are carrying the Berlin dispute to the security council Article 37 says that should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that article they shall refer it to the security council What are the means indicated' in Article 33? They are that the parties to any dispute the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security shall first of all seek a solution by negotiation enquiry mediation conciliation arbitration judicial settlement resort to regional agencies or arrangements or other peaceful means of their own choice

Thus far in the Moscow discussion we have sought a solution by negotiation," and have failed That is why we have come to the U N But now that we have come to the U N we are under the obligation as parties to the dispute and as guardians and sponsors of the U N to try the other "means indicated" in Article 33 namely 'enquiry' or 'mediation' or "conciliation' or "arbitration" or 'judicial settlement' or other peaceful means of their (that is to say the four powers) own choice"

This is certainly the position we would take if we were not ourselves parties to the dispute—if as a member of the U. N. we were called upon to deal with the dispute between, let us say, Pakistan and India, or between South Africa and India. We can do no less when we are one of the parties to a dispute

If the other means are resorted to we must suppose that in the end the United Nations will recommend a resumption of the discussions about Berlin which have just been broken off and of the discussions of a German peace treaty which were broken off last December So we must be prepared at some stage in the U N action to say what we consider to be the essential terms of a German treaty

For if there is to be anything more than a temporary and precarious truce in Berlin it can be only because there is a general settlement of the German question And if there is to be an irrevocable and irreconcilable break between East and West and a final partition of Germany and of Europe then our position will be infinitely stronger if the break comes over the future of Germany as a whole than over the rather confused dispute in Berlin

Textile Mill Worker Goes To Oxford on Scholarship

SPARTANBURG S C —(AP)—Its been pretty tough at times for John Quitman Hill once a textile factory worker but he's headed for Oxford university now

The greatest adventure yet in his long quest for knowledge begins today when John now 29 and his little family sails on the Queen Mary for England The South Carolina farm boy who weathered childhood illnesses and adolescent money shortages now is a Rhodes scholar

The one-time textile mill mechanic won the scholarship last winter in competition with 18 college graduates from the Carolinas, Georgia, Virginia and Tennessee

John a farm boy was afflicted with malaria fever when he was six and he was 11 before he could enter school He finished a seven grade rural school graduated from high school then went to work in the Lyman plant of Pacific cotton mills near here

He worked the second trick an eight hour shift that ended at 11 p m That schedule permitted him to enroll at Spartanburg Junior college Then he won a scholarship to Wofford college here where he studied a year before being called into military service in World War II

He came back to Wofford after his discharge from the Marine corps and was graduated in 1947 He became a part time instructor in math and experimental physics at Wofford all the while holding down a full time night job in Pacific mills

John a strong chap had little to say after he won the Rhodes scholarship but he did promise his admirers he'd keep on working hard and do his best

His study field one in his professors at Oxford thinks will be to become a country doctor He completed a pre med course at Wofford

As the Hill family left for New York to embark for Southampton they had one regret Buried their dog had to be left behind

"But we're going to send for him assured nine-year-old Linda Dawn the Hills only child

Mansfield Beats Sandusky Streaks, 27-13

..From the Tyger Lair

By EL TIGRE

The team you saw play last night, could have slept in Sandusky Bay.

That, in effect, was the impression the Sandusky Blue Streaks had on their coach, Jeff DeHaven, who tutored the Madison high gridders to their greatest football heights last year.

"We were asleep the whole first half," the diminutive Sandusky coach said. "But I don't think Mansfield's 27-13 victory was too impressive. They'll have to play a lot better to beat Massillon."

AILING AUGIE Morningstar, who left a sick bed at home to attend the game was high in praise of the game Blue Streaks from Lake Erie. "They're a coming team," he said, "and they sure surprised us in the second half." The Tyger coach, all bundled up in sweater and overcoat, said he hoped to continue a friendly rivalry series with the Sandusky eleven. "They're always up for us," he added.

Most ardent Tyger fans among the estimated 10,500 spectators were the grade schoolers sitting in the east stands behind the goal. They out-yelled the Senior high rooters two-to-one.

Least understandable play of the evening: Sitting the high school kids on the thirty yard stripe. It's their game, give it back! They belong on the midfield stripe.

NEXT TIME you come out to Arlin field watch out. Don't sit under the touchdown firework flares! They nearly burned a score of youngsters last night.

More razzle-dazzle, hipper-dipper football went to waste. First, Tiny Tommy Tucker scoots 87 yards through the entire Sandusky team for a touchdown only to have it called back on an offside penalty. Then Tony Taddeo almost got an extra point assist when his drop kick bounced off a Mansfield lineman's back and plopped over the crossbar. The referee nullified the play with another offside penalty.

Capsule comment on the Blue Streak backfield! They reacted like Ole Satchmo's hesitation pitch . . . Sandusky blockers oft-times cluttered up the path of their own runners.

MANSFIELD, though playing under wraps for a great portion of the second half, showed a definite need for more defensive strength, especially on power plays. Bolster the line and look out Massillon!

In the Press Box . . . George Cominos, former Navy lieutenant who covered the halftime color for the News-Journal, asked a neighbor what song the Tyger high band was playing during the formations . . . The answer: "Anchors Aweigh." . . . New rubber yard markers were used for the first time. . . . More than 420 telephone calls flooded the News-Journal office asking for the Senior high and Madison results . . . One call that came in about the Madison team. Told that the Rams were trailing 19-12 when the lights went out, the wiseacre intoned: "Did they play taps, too?"

Citation Expected To Win In Breeze

NEW YORK (AP) — With only three days of rest, Citation returns to action in the $100,000-added Jockey club gold cup at Belmont park today. His rivals would just as soon he'd take a much longer vacation.

The Calumet Farm heads a field of 10 entered for the two mile cup route, and the trainer of one of his chief adversaries — Phalanx — admits Citation packs too much power for the ordinary run-of-mine horses.

Senior High Goes Early For 2nd Win

By FRED THARP
News-Journal Sports Editor

Mansfield Senior high school played creditable football for 30 minutes last night in Arlin field, just enough to derail the Sandusky Blue Streaks, 27 to 13.

The remaining 18 minutes were all Sandusky as Coach Jeff DeHaven's undermanned but game Streaks confirmed the glaring 1948 Tyger forward wall weakness. Sandusky's light but trying backs cut the tissue-like Bengal line into shreds. They concocted one 82-yard march using plays up the middle and off the tackles.

Early in the game Sandusky could do little offensively or defensively as the Bengals built up a convincing 27-to-0 lead. Little Tommy Tucker got the first score on a 39-yard sprint and Capt. Joe Miller, A. C. "Sparky" Jenkins and Ken Carver followed with jaunts into the payoff land.

TUCKER GETS ONE

Tucker, who has scored five times in the three Senior high school games, played less than a quarter as he was "down" with a bad cold. That left the offensive work up to Lou Gregorio, Miller and Jenkins. Gregorio was the best of the lot, picking up 73 yards in 11 carriers.

Tucker came close to equalling Miller's record 87-yard touchdown dash. Near the end of the first heat he cut loose off tackle, shook away from two tacklers, made a beautiful cutback at midfield and easily completed his 87-yard effort. An off-side penalty wiped the run off the books.

Statistics were all Mansfield as the Tygers rolled up 12 first downs and a total of 289 yards. Sandusky had seven first downs and 127 yards. It was the second win in three games for the Tygers and the third straight loss for Sandusky.

For the first time this season, the Tygers exhibited something in the way of a passing attack. Paul Ferguson and Don Cline tossed nine aerials, completing four for 68 yards. Two were intercepted.

OPENS DRIVE

The first TD drive was touched off when Jenkins returned a Tom McGory punt to the Mansfield 18. Tucker picked up five on a sweep and Miller went up the middle for eight. Little Tommy then went off-tackle for the score and Howie Tipper converted.

Mansfield stopped Sandusky quickly after the kickoff and McCory uncorked a fine 42-yard punt which rolled dead on the 12. Jenkins made a yard and then Tucker shook loose only to have the play called back. Miller drove for seven and Gregorio picked up 12 and the Bengals were off to the races.

Two Ferguson-to-Carver passes, mixed with power plays quickly put the ball on the Sandusky six, first and goal. Jenkins and Gregorio made three and Bernie Weaver dropped a pass in the end zone. Joe Letizia drove to the one on fourth down.

McGory was forced to punt from the end zone and Gregorio returned to the 20. Gregorio made 14 on two tries and Miller blasted over from the six. This time Tony Taddeo converted.

An 88-yard march gave Coach Augie Morningstar's team its third score at the start of the second half. Clarence Bailey returned the kickoff 16 yards to the 28. Gregorio and Miller alternated in carrying the ball to the Sandusky 16. Jenkins swept nine yards to the right and seven to the left to tally. Taddeo kicked the point.

RECOVERS FUMBLE

Jack Bargahiser recovered a Sandusky fumble on the 29 shortly after. Done Cline made his offensive quarterback debut and on the first play he threw a pass to Carver in the end zone.

Sandusky then picked up some confidence and ripped 79 yards using spin-bucks and smashes. That put the ball on the 11 and George Kreimes carried four straight times. He was tossed for a pair of three yard losses by Jim Miller and Jenkins and made seven on the other tries.

Mansfield was penalized back to the four after gaining possession of the ball. Cline passed from the end zone and Ron Lauber intercepted on the 17 and dashed over.

Another break gave the Streaks their second tally. Jack Sharp fell on a fumble on the 14 and six plays later Don Cottey scored from the one on a sneak.

Shelby Whippets Squeeze Past Galion Club, 7 to 6

By JOHN PATRICK

GALION—The Shelby Whippets nosed out the Galion Tigers here last night, 7-6, by the narrow margin of Junior Scheerer's conversion after touchdown.

What appeared to be an easy victory early in the game when the Whippets marched from their own 32 to the Galion 10 where a fumble was recovered by Galion, soon had the jammed Heise park on their feet as the Tigers proceeded to march right back up the field to the Shelby 37 where St. Clair on a reverse dashed around left end for a touchdown only to have it nullified because of backfield in motion.

The Whippets tightened and St. Clair kicked into the end zone. Again Shelby smashed from their own 20 to the Galion 20 where Knapp threw to Utz for the first score. Scheerer's attempt for the extra point was good.

In the second half Galion kicked off to the Shelby 20. In five plays Berry carried the ball to the Galion 48. The Whippets fumbled and Galion recovered. After two plays without any gain Stoner threw a long forward pass which was partially blocked and deflected into Schwartz's hands who raced to the Shelby 10.

STONER SCORES

Stoner smashed around end to score on the next play. The attempt for conversion was blocked by Scheerer.

The Tigers soon had the crowd on its feet again as they pushed and smashed down to the eight-yard line.

With 30 seconds remaining Galion gambled on a place kick, but the Whippets tore through to block the kick.

Cleveland Browns Switch Contest With Brooklyn

CLEVELAND—(AP)—With a possible world series scheduled here, the champion Cleveland Browns of the All-American football conference today announced plans for an unprecedented Sunday night game Oct. 10.

The Browns originally were slated to play an afternoon game with the Brooklyn Dodgers here Oct. 10. However, the fifth game of the world series is scheduled the same day in the American league city.

If rain postpones some series games, the grid contest will be postponed to the night of the last baseball tilt here, the Browns reported.

If the Indians fail to win the American league pennant or the series lasts only four games, the football game still will remain scheduled for Sunday night.

Golf Banquet

Forty-Coolridge club league golfers will be present at the annual banquet to be held at 7 p. m. tonight at the Fairway club. Awards to individual and team champions will be made by club manager, Fred Huntsman.

Series Ticket Notices Sent

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The first notices to fans who will receive world series tickets if Cleveland wins the American league pennant were in the mails today.

The last of some 20,000 letters to out-of-town applicants were sent out yesterday by the Cleveland Baseball corporation. By Sunday night, the mountainous job of notifying local fans is expected to be completed.

Meanwhile, Detective Lt. Martin P. Conney, head of the racket squad, warned against purchasing tickets from scalpers. Counterfeit tickets are expected to flood the area if the series is held here, he said.

Coach Walker Asks Ruling From Ohio Athletic Office

By CHARLEY STINE

ORRVILLE—The Orrville-Madison high school football game was called off in the fourth quarter here last night when a burned out transformer shut off half the floodlights at Orr field. Orrville was leading 19-12 at the time.

In a heated argument following the game, Orrville claimed victory by virtue of holding the lead, but Madison Coach Ennis Walker will report the incident to High School Athletic Commissioner H. W. Emswhiler for an official ruling.

All lights on one side of the field were out and Walker refused to continue under such conditions for fear of injury to the boys. The host team suggested turning automobile light on one side of the field for the 8 minutes, 52 seconds remaining.

After playing listless ball the first half, Madison had come to life and had a fine chance to overtake the host team which has not been beaten for two years. The Rams had just scored their second touchdown and kicked off to Orrville when the lights failed.

Orrville scored in each of the first three periods while Madison scored in the third and fourth.

TAKES OVER LEAD

Orrville took the lead near the end of the first quarter when Jack Bracken ran a Madison punt back down the left sideline, for 60 yards and a score. In the second period Bill Shoup intercepted a pass from Larry Secrist and returned to the Madison 38. Nine plays carried over with Bowman lugging from the three yard line. Buchanan's placements were wide in both instances. Score 12-0.

The second half was a different story as the disadvantage in weight began to tell on Orrville. Walker injected new fire into the Rams at half-time and they seemed bent on overcoming their disadvantage.

They wasted little time starting. After kicking off the Rams held Orrville for three downs on the 29-yard line and then Bruce Armstrong broke through to block Buchanan's punt. The ball bounded all the way to the Orrville four where Ed Locke fell on it. Fred Durig plunged to the three and Larry Secrist ran right end for the tally. Bill Remy's extra point attempt went wide.

ONE MORE DRIVE

Orrville had enough left for one more touchdown and made a 63-yard sustained drive to get it. Bracken circled right end from the four to hit paydirt. This time Buchanan split the uprights for a 19-6 lead.

A few minutes later Pedro Pryor hit Buchanan on the 21-yard line as he caught Gene Riblet's punt. The ball rolled free and Pryor pounced on it, to set up the final Madison score. Eight plays took the pigskin over, Fred Durig pushing the last six inches through the center of the line. Remy's placement was again wild.

Yanks, Red Sox Get Ray of Hope As Indians Lose, 5-3

By JOE REICHLER

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Are the Cleveland Indians finally cracking?

Are they getting jittery?

Will history repeat, with Detroit's Tiger frustrating another Cleveland pennant dream a la 1940?

Veteran baseball observers were asking these questions today, as the Indians approached the final two games of the regular campaign, after seeing their first place margin over Boston and New York whittled to one thin length yesterday.

Certainly, events which led to Cleveland's 5-3 setback by the Tigers gave them cause to wonder. The Indians definitely did not look like the same ball club which blazed through September burning up everything in sight.

What impressed the scribes who've hooked on with the club were the spirit, hustle, fight and poise of the Tribe. The first three assets apparently are still in evidence. It was the fourth item, the matter of poise, that yesterday wholesale raising of eyebrows.

For the first time in a month, the Indians did not look like a flag winner, while blowing a vital verdict to the Bengals. The deepest impression was that their performance was sloppy. Larry Doby misjudged a fly. Bob Lemon was guilty of a bad throw on a play he shouldn't have attempted. Jim Hegan's low throw to first was dropped by Walt Judnich, at the cost of a rally-killing double play. All these combined to beat Cleveland.

Then there was the futile relief performance by Russ Christopher. Calm and capable in similar emergencies throughout the year, the lanky, side-armer, possibly serious sore, served four straight balls to the first batter he faced in the ninth, forcing home the tying run.

Manager Lou Boudreau, whose own faultless fielding and timely hitting—he figured in all the Indians' scoring—were wasted, insisted after the game that his charges were not jittery.

"We're still not badly off," the popular pilot averred. "Christopher has been my man in such predicaments throughout the season, and I'm certain it was not jitters that affected his control. He just did not have it.

The Tigers struck for three runs in the ninth inning to gain the verdict. Bob Lemon, who was trying for the fourth time to win his 21st game, set up his own downfall.

Eddie Mayo, the first Detroit batter in the ninth, dribbled a slow roller down the third base line. Lemon fielded it and hit Mayo in the back with his throw. Mayo reached second base as the ball bounded away. Lemon settled down to strike out Johnny Bero and got two strikes on Johnny Groth, but walked him. He couldn't find the plate against Joe Ginsberg, the third straight pinch hitter, and walked him on five pitches.

In came Christopher. He tried to keep the ball low to Johnny Lipon but the first four pitches stayed so low Lipon drew a walk, forcing in the tying run. Neil Berry bounced to third Baseman Ken Keltner who threw to the plate for a force out. But the double play failed when Judnich dropped Catcher Jim Hegan's throw at first.

With the count two balls and one strike, Jimmy Outlaw singled into center field, bringing home the winning runs.

In the only other American league action, the Browns and White Sox split a twilight-night doubleheader at Chicago. St. Louis won the first game 4-0, behind Cliff Fannin's three-hit pitching. Chicago won the second, 3-2.

St. Louis took over the second place in the National league by whipping Chicago, 6-4, on Ron Northey's three-run home run.

Brooklyn slipped to third place by losing to the champion Boston Braves, 3-1. Vern Bickford won his 11th game for the Braves. Pittsburg

Church Women Plan Busy Season

Two Events Feature Fall Program

Mansfield church women have placed on their calendars two red-letter days for fall thinking and planning.

The first event is the initial open meeting of the year for the Mansfield Council of Church Women next Friday at the First Evangelical UB church when a missions institute will be held.

The second is World Communion day, set for Nov. 5, coinciding with the observance for church women throughout the world.

At the first meeting next Friday, an all-day session, a panel group headed by Mrs. V. C. Stamets, wife of the pastor of the host church, and Mrs. W. M. Taylor, wife of the pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will feature the program.

They will be assisted by a resource discussion group, representing all churches, and panel members. The studies will include such topics as foreign, "China In the Asia of Today" and home, "Our Geographical Frontiers." The latter includes Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Panama.

Members of the council and all church women who will attend have been asked to take to the meeting maps, posters, leaflets, pictures and books depicting each denominational work in the two chosen study fields.

Mrs. O. F. Shively, member of the First Christian church, will be chairman for the day.

The World Community day program on Friday, Nov. 5, will take place in the First United Presbyterian church at 2 p. m., with Mrs. E. W. Weaver of Toledo as the guest speaker. Mrs. Weaver is president of the Ohio Council of Church Women.

HELP YOUNG PEOPLE

The World Community day subject is "Pack a Towel for a Teenager." Mansfield's share in this project is under the supervision of Mrs. E. Jackson Osborne, project chairman for the Mansfield Council of Church Women.

Each towel in the package to be sent to a boy or girl of teenage in a Displaced Persons camp, is to be 22 inches wide. Included in the package may be any of the following articles: warm material for a dress, or pants, sewing things, soap, comb, stockings, socks, handkerchiefs, writing materials or similar articles but nothing breakable or spillable.

The World Community Day program will underscore five special points—brotherhood, human rights, civil rights, economic justice and mobilization of women for lasting peace.

The program will be woven around the theme, "Peace is Our Responsibility."

Further program details will be announced later.

Tailoring Tips Given In Book

New Volume Offers Help to Women

"Modern Tailoring for Women," by Frances Mauck, is one of 20 new books which will be available at the Mansfield Public Library Monday.

This non-fiction selection will be of special interest to the numerous women who are making their own clothes this fall. It is a practical book for the home dressmaker. The book gives complete and detailed instructions for tailoring women's and children's clothes from the selection of fabric to the pressing of the finished garment.

VOUZA AND THE SOLOMON ISLANDS by Hector MacQuarrie, a New Zealander, who went to the island of Vanikoro as a colonial administrator for the British government. Underneath the humor, this is the story of how he came to admire the natives, their brain, brawn and courage — especially Vouza, with his powerful build and brilliant bronze hair.

CARTELS OR COMPETITION, by George W. Stocking and Myron Watkins, is the second in a series of economic studies sponsored by the Twentieth Century Fund. The first was an analysis of international cartels in eight important fields. This volume gives the general reader an objective appraisal of the cartel movement as a whole. It estimates the extent to which cartels affect foreign and domestic markets, industrial stability, and technological advance. The concluding chapter offers a constructive program to deal with the problems involved.

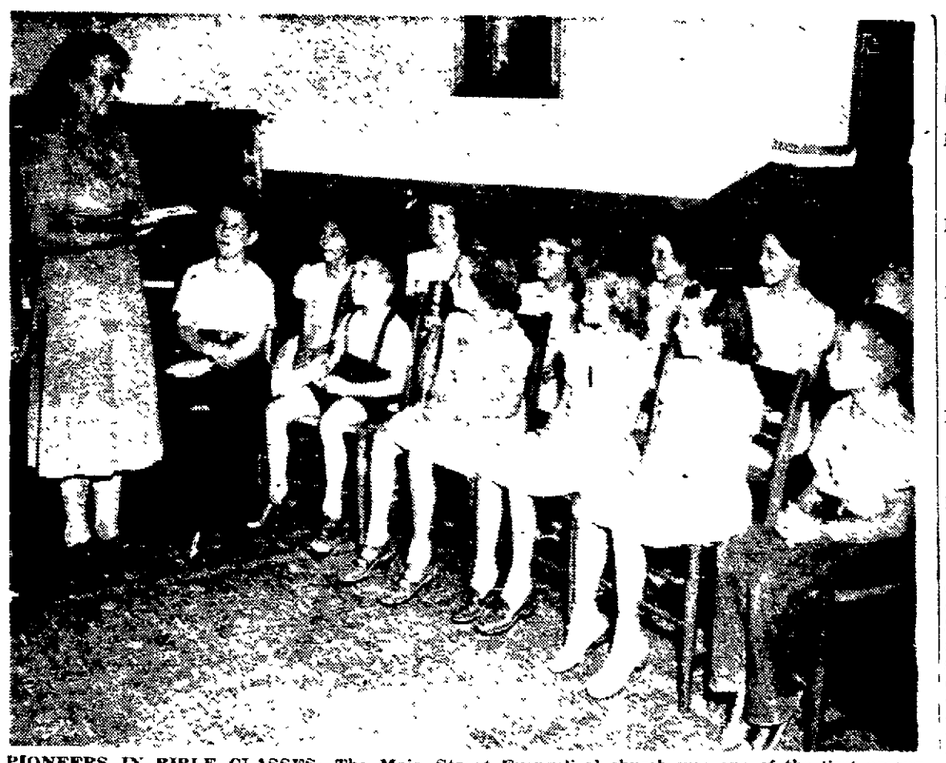
Other non-fiction:

NORTHWEST CORNER: WASHINGTON AND OREGON, by Holbrook; PLOTTING FOR EVERY KIND OF WRITING, by Woodford; PROTESTANT CHURCH BUILDINGS, by Leach; 5 GREAT RULES OF SELLING, by Whiting.

THE CLEFT ROCK, by Alice Tisdale Hobart, has its setting in the Central Valley of California. The story begins about 1920 and ends in our own time. It deals with the struggle of men against the arid land, the struggle of small farmers against land barons, the struggle of father against son.

TRUMPET IN THE CITY is a new historical novel by Helen Topping Miller. Georgia's part in the American Revolution is portrayed as background for an unusual love story. How the loyalists were driven into war is skillfully woven into the exciting fabric of the times.

Other non-fiction: OF FLIGHT AND LIFE, by Lindbergh; WRITE FOR MONEY, by Woodford; TRACKS AND TRAILCRAFT, by Jaeger; THE BRAZILIANS, by Tavares de Sa; ALL THE BEST IN THE CARIBBEAN, by Clark; CALCULATED RISK, by Armstrong; SEEING CALIFORNIA, by Tavenner.



PIONEERS IN BIBLE CLASSES—The Main Street Evangelical church was one of the first among city churches to start neighborhood classes in religious education. Mrs. Charles Ray, former teacher of religious education in Mansfield public schools, instructs a group of children at a Thursday class.

Set Up Children's Classes

By NITA BRANSON

At least three Mansfield churches are on the way to solving the religious education problem in Mansfield public schools, caused by the banning of such classes during school hours by the Supreme court ruling last spring.

Tackling the problem are the Main Street Evangelical UB, the First United Presbyterian and the First Evangelical UB churches

Although unofficial, the class taught each Friday afternoon for the past four years by Mrs. Lewis Davidson at Alta and the one started recently by Mrs. William Schuff in East Mansfield are indirectly under the supervision of the First Evangelical UB since both women are members of that church.

However, a council of administration of the church is considering a neighborhood project that will spread over the entire city but plans are being held up temporarily while the Council of Religious Education debates the problem.

The two other churches began youth classes several weeks ago. The one at the Main street church was held for its third session Thursday afternoon from 4 to 5 p. m. The United Presbyterian had a second session last Wednesday following school hours. In each project, there has been a definite increase in attendance and interest.

START YOUTH CLUBS—Mrs. Charles L. Shook, wife of the pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, leads a group of school children in the Wednesday afternoon club at the church. Community singing is a big part of the program, which the congregation started two weeks ago.

In both class groups, the program is interdenominational, open to any child in the city. They are "neighborhood clubs" in reality. Attendance at the Main street church has reached 50 and that at the United Presbyterian, has increased to 90 school children.

Mrs Charles Ray is supervising director at the Main street church, assisted by Mrs Willard J Shawk, wife of the pastor, and Miss Ruth Elaine Braytman newly appointed church secretary. If the class increases in attendance, other members of the Sunday school and church will be added to the staff.

"It's surprising how Mrs. Ray can hold the attention of 50 children while telling a story," Mrs. Shawk said. "The children who are normally little wiggle-worms sit absolutely quiet and take in every word. In addition to stories, we have song periods in which we teach them the best of children's hymns, memory lessons from the Bible such as the Psalms, stories both from the Bible ,and those which are character building."

At the United Presbyterian church, classes are under the supervision of Rev. and Mrs. Charles L. Shook, assisted by Mrs. Carl Wolford, Mrs. Arlie Kiser, Mrs. Frederick Proctor, Mrs. E. Jackson Osborne, Mrs. Dean Miller, Mrs. Harold Welker, Mrs. Clair Kirschhofer and Paul Tapper.

"At our church we are dividing the children into classes," Rev. Shook said "Those in the first, second and third grades are enrolled in one class; those of the fourth, fifth and sixth in a second and pupils of seventh, eighth and ninth in a third.

Each Youth club, as we call the groups, will decide on a name The idea for our Youth Club program is patterned after those held by the Westminster United Presbyterian church of Des Moines, Iowa. There were no religious education classes in Des Moines, just these neighborhood groups or Youth clubs, which the churches provided for all children."

FACILITIES FOR 150

"We have facilities for caring for 150, should attendance reach that point," Rev. Shook said. "Our program will consist of music, Bible stories and recreational features. In addition we will serve refreshments with each weekly meeting."

There have been refreshments each Thursday also at the Main street church and special features, such as extra movies, will be arranged for the program about once a month," Mrs. Shawk said.

Both churches are pioneering in the idea here. However, both Rev. Shook and Rev. Shawk are pleased with the way things are going.

"We could care for quite a few more in our church," Rev. Shawk said. "We want it understood that our class is not just for our own church children; it is for the entire neighborhood, regardless of church affiliation."

That idea was echoed by Rev. Shook, both of whom hope to reach many children outside their own churches.

Jewish Congregations Begin Rosh Hashonoh Observance

Tomorrow the two Jewish congregations in Mansfield, B'nai Jacob and Temple Emanuel, will usher in their annual New Year's or Rosh Hashonoh worship services.

"This holiday is a time of spiritual scrutiny," Rabbi Moshe Goldblum of the B'nai Jacob synagogue said. "It is a time when each individual must take stock of his past actions during the year and resolve to live a better life during the coming year."

During the two-day observance of Rosh Hashonoh the congregations participate in public prayer and private devotions. Within the past 10 days preceding the opening service Sunday at 8 p. m., members of the faith were asked to repent for their sins by resolving to improve their lives. These 10 days are known as the 10 days of penitence.

New Year's is followed in 10 days by Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement, when the fate of every member of the faith is sealed by God, as to how he is to fare during the coming year.

Those participating in the services at B'nai Jacob are Louise Komita, who will chant the morning service, Leo Budin, James Goodman, Conrad Harris, Samuel Harris, Leonard Hurwitz, Andrew Klein, David S. Lapine, Dr. O. J. Marcus, Harold Oxman and Charles Weinstein. Mrs. Goldblub, Miss Marcia Freeman and Miss June Klein will be in charge of the children's services and Robert Gerth in charge of the ushers.

Services at B'nai Jacob synagogue will be held Sunday at 8 p. m., Monday, at 8 a. m., 6:30 p. m., and Tuesday at 8 a. m

Rites at the Temple Emanuel, at which Rabbi Eugene Lipman, Cincinnati, will preside, will be held Sunday at 8 p m., and Monday at 10 a. m. and 2 p m.

Rabbi Lipman is the newly appointed rabbi of the Temple Emanuel, dedicated for worship last Sunday afternoon.

and a casual acquaintance, if the two had been observed in conversation on the street or in a tea room, that was enough to land the acquaintance in the net. The terror fed on suspicion and denunciation. Proteges of purged officials were rounded up and seldom came back.

We knew Anya's husband to be absolutely innocent of any disloyalty to the Soviet government. But we never saw him again. He was shipped off to the Northern camps near the Arctic Circle. Later we learned from an inmate in the same camp, who was fortunate enough to survive and be returned home, that Stefan had died from hunger and cold there.

During the second half of April, following the seizure of Stefan, the iron claws of the NKVD reached into the schools. Teachers who had toiled all their lives, who had created and kept their institutions going in the most trying times would be arrested and vanish without trace.

One day my husband Demyan came home and reported:

"They took three away today. I'm fraid they'll be after me too."

We talked over the advisability of Demyan's absenting himself from town under some pretext until things quieted down. There were some who saved their lives in this manner, and even now I sometimes think that if my husband had only decided to go away, our tragedy might have been averted. But there was no place in his home village that would provide safety for him. We concluded that, after all, his most secure haven was with my father with whom we were living.

FATEFUL NIGHT

On that fateful night, towards the end of April, I returned from school about 7 o'clock in the evening. My husband arrived soon after. My boy Oleg, who had just turned sixteen, was not home yet, and we were worried about him. When he finally showed up he explained that he had gone to see a movie.

"What about your homework?" I asked with annoyance.

"Oh, I finished it long ago." Oleg was an excellent student, and his marks in all subjects were straight A's.

We sat down to the table. My husband was morose. He announced:

"Today they took the director himself away." We gasped. Demyan was teaching in the technical institute. After a while he added: "And the teacher of geography, too."

I knew that geography instructor well. He was a veteran educator, with a large family, and very popular. Shocked, I exclaimed:

"Why? Why him?"

"What a question from you! Don't you know what's going on?" Demyan rejoined sharply.

POLICE ARRIVE

I made the bed for Oleg. His little room was filled with cactus plants which my mother cultivated. We occupied, together with my parents, their four-room cottage. My mother's hobby always had been flowers, and I inherited my interest in botany from her. I had ten palms in the house. Whenever there was need in town of flowers for a wedding or a funeral or some festival, they would come to mother.

My husband and I went to work to prepare the next day's lessons and tests for the coming examination period. We were still at it after midnight when there was a sudden knock at the back door. It was 12:30. "Open the door, it's the NKVD," came a voice from outside.

Demyan started for the door. "No," I said trembling "I'll go" I pointed to the front door, indicating to my husband that perhaps it might be best for him to try to get away. He shook his head and whispered, "It's no use, they always surround a house"

CUTS PROTESTS

My father, awakened, was at the door ahead of me. He let in three officers of the NKVD. They cut his question short and sent the old man back to his room.

"We have orders to take you away," the chief of the trio turned to Demyan when they entered our room, as he produced a search warrant.

"Why didn't you come in the morning or in the daytime," I snapped at the officers. "Did you have to do it in the middle of the night?"

"That's our affair," the officer in charge shot at me. "Mind your own business, and don't talk so much"

The three started on a methodical and minute search of all our belongings. First they went through all the books and papers, looking for counter-revolutionary material of which there was none. But they did find in my desk an old letter from my sister Eugenia in England dealing with family matters, and which I had foolishly saved. For the NKVD hounds a letter from a foreign country was a prize indeed.

Demyan, who had kept his poise, was now visibly d He gave me a reproachful look as if saying:

"Why, oh why, did you have to keep it?"

TOMORROW: The fate of Demyan.

Thursday night members officially opened the fund-raising campaign under the direction of Judge Herbert H. Schettler.

Workers Seek $250,000 In Drive

Church Fund Campaign Under Way

A campaign to raise $250,000 to help build a new First Congregational church is under way.

While the entire building project will cost close to $500,000, the congregation has $250,000 in reserve to apply on the new church It was finally decided that campaign members would work for enough to complete the entire building project of four units, sanctuary, social hall, religious education building and chapel.

The congregational meeting Thursday night was opened with devotionals by the pastor, Rev. Matthew G. Madden. An explanation of the campaign needs was given by Judge Herbert H. Schettler, campaign chairman. Fred Hout, who prepared a brochure of information and planning for members of the campaign committee and congregational members, explained its purpose.

The new building will be erected at Marion avenue and Millsboro road on land donated by the Black family. It will be one of the finest and most complete religious structures in this section of the state. Designed by the late W. H Thomas of Philadelphia, noted church architect, it combines the most efficient and beautiful in church architecture.

Campaign workers hope to reach their goal within a week, Judge Schettler said.

FACES MILLSBORO ROAD

The site is such that both the first and second floors of the religious education building, to the west and slightly to the rear of the main sanctuary, will be above ground level The social hall is to the west of the religious education building, on the Millsboro road side. Here on the ground floor, there will be a seating capacity for 355 persons, with a stage, adequate storage space beneath, and club rooms.

The chapel will seat 80 persons and will be used for funerals, small weddings and junior church services.

The spire on the main sanctuary will be 110 feet high. The sanctuary will seat 406 persons, with additional seating space in the balcony for 60 more. The choir will seat 42 persons.

The entire group of buildings will be erected of red brick with white trim and of Colonial design.

When finished, there will be available for the extensive religious program, 409,000 cubic feet of space Besides the actual building cost of $455,000, an additional $45,000 will be needed for driveways, furnishings and landscaping.

Club Raided

HOLLYWOOD — (INS)— Sheriff's vice squad deputies yesterday raided for a second time this week a Sunset strip "after-hours" nitery and arrested 56 patrons on gambling and vagrancy charges.

Among those arrested was Dancer Vicki Evans, 25, who is a principal in the Robert Mitchum marijuana case.

An Earl[illegible]oll dancer, Marie L'Angelo, also was gathered in. Only last Wednesday 21 persons were taken into custody in the same night club.

Members of the council and all church women who will attend have been asked to take to the meeting maps, posters, leaflets, pictures and books depicting each denominational work in the two chosen study fields.

Included in the package may be any of the following articles: warm material for a dress, or pants, sewing things, soap, comb, stockings, socks, handkerchiefs, writing materials or similar articles but nothing breakable or spillable.

Zeoli, a former Sing Sing prisoner, became converted while "doing time" at the New York state penitentiary, and has followed the road of evangelism ever since, according to Rev. James Davey, pastor of the Mansfield church. Following his release, he took training at the Philadelphia School of the Bible.

He is in his 25th year of preaching from coast to coast. Zeoli comes to Mansfield from Akron, where he completes a program Sunday night.
